Creative Partnerships

Kingsmead School, Showcase

Having never worked in referral units before, we were keen to see how different the learning styles were from mainstream education and how powerful creative media could be to raise the aspirations of hard to reach young people.

Working with staff, we planned a series of creative workshops to give a broad experience, including video, animation, music, aerosol art and web design. Each workshop had to be very focussed and be designed specifically for the groups participating, each with tangible outputs which we could use within a school website to showcase the pupils work, raising awareness of their potential to parents and carers, the wider community and most importantly to the pupils themselves.

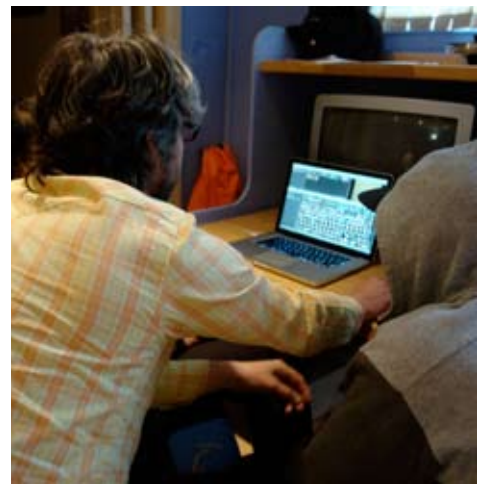

Each session was run in tandem with a dedicated member of staff and results were reviewed with the Creative Partnership Agent as well as with the pupils and staff at Kingsmead.

The workshops were challenging but very rewarding with individual young people discovering skills for the first time and working well together to achieve creative results.
